

To create a list on Twitter, go to the gear icon at the top right of the page. Select 'Lists', and you will see a page which will contain any lists you will make.

You can see any existing lists, and you have the opportunity to create a new one. Click on 'Create list', and you will be asked to name your new list and add a brief description. This description will be very helpful if you now choose to make the list public, so others can find and subscribe to it.

You will now be invited to search for people to add to your list. You can also add them later, by clicking on their @handle and going to their profile. Next to the 'Follow(ing)' button, you will see cog icon. If you click on this, you will see a menu containing the option 'add or remove from lists' (this is also where you can send them private Direct Messages, as in Day 4).

While we're on the topic of managing people, you can also block or report people using this menu, for example, if you are followed by a spam account or someone you don't want following you.

To add any person to your list, simply tick the box:

To view your lists, you can simply click on the cog icon, and click 'lists', pick the list you want to view, and you'll see only the tweets from the people in that list.
